SUBJECT: CDC Revisions to Visa Medical Examination Validities

1. Effective March 1, 2015, all components of the medical examination for visa applicants will be valid for either six months or three months, based on the tuberculosis evaluation. Previously, some non-TB evaluation components of the medical examination were valid for up to one year. Updated information will be published in 9 FAM 40.11 N6 and 9 FAM 40.11 Exhibit I. Below is the revised table from 9 FAM 40.11 Exhibit I. Per 9 FAM 40.11, notwithstanding the provisions of INA 221(C), visa validity must be limited to the validity of the medical examination.

2. Medical examinations will be valid for six months for individuals with the following conditions:

- a. No Class (i.e. No Apparent Defect, Disease, or Disability);
- b. Class A, Other than TB;
- c. Class B2 LTBI;
- d. Class B3 TB (Contact Evaluation);
- e. Class B, all except TB, including specific Class B conditions; and
- f. Class B Other conditions.

3. Medical examinations will be valid for three months for individuals with the following conditions:

- a. Class A TB with Waiver;
- b. Class B1 TB, Pulmonary;
- c. Class B1 TB, Extrapulmonary; and
- d. HIV infection (with or without a TB Class).

4. Revised table from 9 FAM 40.11 Exhibit I:
